Unique Concert Coming to Indy in April 2017: Music for the Soul - Celebrating Life, Facing Death

Indianapolis-based Elaine Voci Life Skills Coaching, LLC is sponsoring a unique musical event that will embrace and celebrate life and mortality.

Indianapolis, IN, Dec. 31, 2016 – Life coach, published author and Death Café facilitator Elaine Voci, Ph.D. will host a unique concert, ‘Music for the Soul - Celebrating Life, Facing Death,’ on Sunday April 30, 2017 from 3:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at St. Paul’s Episcopal Church, 6050 North Meridian Street in Indianapolis. Award-winning Ohio National Public Radio journalist Bill Cohen, who left NPR in 2013 to pursue his love of music and performing at concerts, will provide the entertainment.

Voci’s vision for this event grew from her experience as a certified Life Cycle Celebrant, life coach and facilitator in the successful Death Café movement. She assists individuals as they journey through stages of life and reach milestones—including the loss of a loved one or facing their own mortality. Bill Cohen will play a wide range of musical styles, including folk songs, 1950s-style “oldies but goodies,” an Irish ballad and a touch of country, to name a few. ‘Music for the Soul’ intends to bring people together to share music that will offer deeper meaning and understanding of the issues of death and dying.

“This won’t be a depressing morbid look at death and it won’t include any theological proselytizing either,” says Voci. “In fact, we will be including several songs about the liberation we can feel when we realize our inevitable deaths give our lives meaning, and opens doors for us to be the best we can be.”

The concert is open to the public, and there will be a $15 fee at the door ($10 if purchased online in advance at www.elainevoci.com) with a special “two for one” available for caregivers accompanying a disabled attendee. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to a local chapter of the Alzheimer’s Association.
